Academic Peer Advocates

Position Description

Academic Peer Advocate (APA) Position Description
2019-2020 Academic Year

Academic Peer Advocate (APAs) are undergraduate members of the University Housing-Residence Life staff. APAs are students accountable to a supervisor and provide an essential role between University Housing and our residents. Academic Peer Advocates work alongside Resident Assistants, Assistant Hall Directors, Hall Directors, and other housing staff to create a positive living-learning environment, focusing on personal development and academic success.

The APA position requires an individual acutely sensitive to the needs of students; can be flexible regarding time demands; can perform essential administrative tasks; is sensitive to diversity in lifestyles; and has a genuine desire to be of service to others. The Academic Peer Advocate role is to support the mission of University Housing in the process of facilitating a positive living-learning community in the residence halls.

The APA position is comprised of various responsibilities. Meetings, academic interventions, administrative work, assisting with social justice and inclusivity programming, developing large scale academic events, and providing academic-focused intentional interactions to residents are all examples of responsibilities which will require varied time commitments. These time commitments constitute only a part of the time expectations in the APA position and are in addition to the informal time to be spent in a variety of ways including, but not limited to, time spent living in the hall, studying, or doing personal business while still being available to respond to the needs of residents. A unique aspect of the Academic Peer Advocate position is a large portion of both time commitments are carried out during the evening and weekend hours.
